Luigi Santangelo provides judicial and extrajudicial assistance to companies and individuals in the areas of corporate criminal law, environmental criminal law and health and safety criminal law. He also deals with computer crime, medical liability, tax crimes, corporate liability 1, and unauthorized property development crimes.

Since 2008 he has constantly provided legal assistance to leading operators in the telecommunications, logistics and insurance sectors; he has also developed a specific and strong experience in the field of environmental criminal law, assisting - both in and out of court - a number of Italian and multinational companies operating in the chemical and pharmaceutical sectors.

In the course of his career, he has defended companies in numerous ordinary proceedings before the main Italian courts, in relation to a wide range of crimes (environmental crimes, health and safety crimes, computer crimes, property crimes, forgery and falsification).

He has also cooperated with and, in recent years, directly assumed the defence of leading companies in matters of corporate liability pursuant to Legislative Decree No. 231/2001 in complex legal cases.

He has also assisted managers, employees and professionals accused of tax crimes, including transnational ones, as well as in relation to environmental, health and safety issues.

He has significant experience in consulting activities, both for specific tasks and on a day-to-day basis, developing specific skills in relation to environmental, tax, occupational health and safety issues, and in all the main areas of corporate criminal law.

As part of the assistance described so far, he has collaborated with consultants with expertise in other areas of law and delved into issues within the competence of the main regulatory authorities, such as AGCM, Agcom and Garante della Privacy.
